

Regional Museum

The Regional Museum in Barlinek is located in the so called Guttenberg's House on 17 Niepodległości [Independence] Street, one of the main streets in the town. The museum is situated near Park Piłsudskiego. The entrance to the museum is from Paderewskiego Street.

The Regional Museum in Barlinek is located in Guttenberg's House. It was erected in the middle of the 19th century, and in the past it was used as a printing house and a book shop. From Niepodległości Street, in the main façade, there is a bust of Jan Guttenberg, the creator of print. Initially, since 1961, the museum functioned as a Chamber of Relicts in which the local collector - Czesław Paśnik – shared his private collection with the public. In the meantime, the Chamber transformed into a museum. At present, it belongs to the town, being part of Community Centre's structure. The Museum owns: historic, archaeological, ethnographic and biographical collections. Currently, there are four permanent exhibitions available in the museum:
