

Port and the city quay of Wolin

Wolin

A quiet port located on the strait connecting the Szczeciński Lagoon and the Baltic Sea

You can reach the port from the north or from the south. The southern approach is nearly 2.5 meters deep, the northern one is only 2 meters deep. Sailing from Dziwnów to Wolin, we have 4 bridges to overcome. One of them is rotating (Wolin), and the other, in Dziwnów, has a drawbridge. The other two in Wolin are railway and road bridges. Both are suspended at a height of about 12 meters, assuming the average water level. Sailors can also moor at the city quay. They have several hundred meters of concrete quay and beautiful green meadows nearby.
